Fish and Game Hawke's Bay represents people who are passionate about outdoor life. They provide advice on how to create and restore wetland areas. These 'guardians' of New Zealand's wetlands have been campaigning to protect wetlands like Pekapeka for more than 75 years.

Duck shooting

There are many maimai's set up throughout Pekapeka for duckshooting. In some areas there has been large amounts of willow clearing as well as native planting around these huts.

Bird watching

Forest and Bird have groups that regularly visit the site for wildlife observation.

Public access and education

Because Pekapeka has cultural and wildlife significance, it has been made available to enjoy with the new walkways and boardwalks. Now people can walk through the site and be educated about its history and importance through the recently constructed information panels.
